

Class 5: People to 1850 --About Portraits. Age before beauty, [rank, wealth, family size, # portraits in NC, art vs representation....]

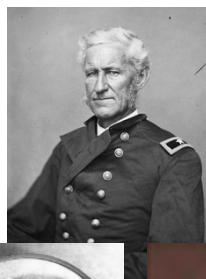

Peter Stuyvesant
Ann Clay BoothOP

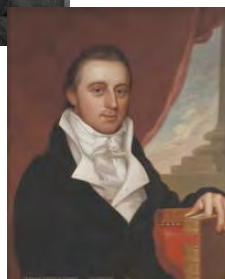

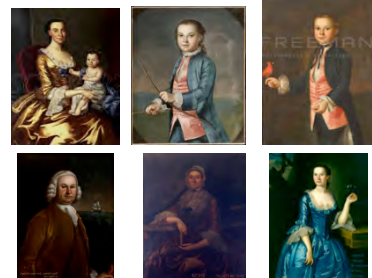

Dorcas Montgomery Van Dyke Dupont
Mary Borden McKean

Ann Curtis Clay
(11/13 living children)

Thomas McKean
Lorenzo Thomas
details.php?wname=ann_curtis_clay

James McCallmont (1798)
Nicholas Van Dyke Jr. (1826)
<http://nc-chap.org/census/riordan/tax1798.php>
<http://nc-chap.org/census/riordan/tax1826.php>

Portraits of the Rich and Powerful in New Castle (1750-1850)

By residence

By relationship

With help from Louisa Wood Ruby, Head Photoarchives Research, Frick Art Reference Library and Heather Coyle, Curator of American Art, Delaware Art Museum <http://nc-chap.org/portraits>

Hagley Museum and Library

Sources: DHS, NCHS, neighbors
Google, museums, and

Smithsonian index listings:
Mrs. Charles Irene du Pont
(Dorcas Montgomery Van Dyke)
of New Castle,

(1806-1838) [d at 32]

Painted 1832 by
Thomas Sully
(1783-1872)

Godey's Lady's Book 1844 says: "Sully, as all the world knows, paints exquisitely beautiful portraits of ladies.
His praise is in all the parlours."

Parents: Nicholas Van Dyke Jr. &
Mary Van Leuvenigh

Children: Victor, Charles

Father born, lived
She was born
Married
Sister lived
Died? CID house?

She was born in Nicholas Van Dyke Jr House, aka Bridgewater house

Married here, Lafayette attended wedding

Father born, lived, Amstel House

Sister lived here

She died where? CID house near Hagley? Built 1823. One mile from Osher

THIS IS WILMINGTON

In The Street Market
By MURRAY HOROWITZ

Fresh fruits and vegetables direct from the farmer to the consumer. Summer is the busy season along King street, where Mr. and Mrs. Shopper and the farmer strike a bargain.

"The berries sweet!"
"Don't mind you tastin'. Go ahead."

Widow Mary Warren, who has been selling on the farmers' curb market for the past 18 years, was trying to convince a wary King street shopper to buy her cheaper strawberries.

"They're grand tastin', sir," she told the man who, while nibbling a sample, boasted that he once was a farmer himself. The smack of his lips signaled the close of the sale. Two boxes of berries at 35 cents each were shoved into a bag, and widow Mary Warren turned to the next customer.

Wednesday was market day on King street. From Third to Eighth, farmers with the backs of their trousers fringing the sidewalk, displayed their wares. There were tomatoes, lettuce, scallions, radishes, spinach, green turnip tops, red-brick beets, and wild cherries. Flowers in all their glory were well-represented—daisies, coreopsis, lemon lilies, and zinnias.

Old Swedes 250 Years Old Today

Old Swedes church—the most ancient church in America still used for regular worship—will mark its 250th anniversary today. Commemorative services will start at 11 a.m., with Rev. Alexander C. Zabriske, Dean of the Episcopal Theological Seminary in Alexandria, Va., scheduled to be the guest speaker.

Built in 1808 and dedicated with appropriate ceremonies on Trinity Sunday in 1809 by Pastor Erik Ejlerek and other colonial notables, the church still stands as originally constructed.

Last spring a similar anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone was observed when the Archbishop of Sweden, the Bishop of Upsala, Bishop Erling Eidem, the Bishop

The SUNDAY MORNING Star

PART TWO

WILMINGTON, DELAWARE, JUNE 12, 1949

Page 9

Redletter Nuptials For Van Dyke Girls

G. Washington Kisses Pretty Ones

General at Ann Van Dyke's Wedding; Lafayette Gives Her Niece Dorcas Away
"Great Men" Lay Business Aside To Appear in Old New Castle At Marriages Twenty Years Apart

By WILLIAM H. CONNER
Managing Editor, The Star

In the world's eyes they will always be regarded as Those Lucky Van Dyke Girls of New Castle-on-the-Delaware, and with most excellent reason.

The lightning of reflected fame struck twice at Van Dyke nuptials, and the quarry proved a pair of the greatest "lions" of the early history of the Republic—none other than George Washington himself and the Marquis de Lafayette.

Ann Van Dyke was married to Kensey Johns, Sr., in New Castle on April 30, 1784, and to her wedding came General George Washington, freshly garlanded as the Father and Preserver of his Country, a bit late, to be sure, but the observed of all observers.

Early years later, when Washington had laid in his grave for nearly a quarter of a century, his bosom friend and the Nation's guest, the Marquis de Lafayette, cut short a state dinner in Wilmington's City Hall to hurry over to New Castle and give the bride away when Dorcas Montgomery Van Dyke was married to Charles Irene duPont, the while Ann Van Dyke Johns, her aunt, looked on happily.

Second Fiddle Proud as Ann and Dorcas must

In New York on August 14, he must have passed through Delaware at the time, for he was bound for Mount Vernon, where he arrived on the 16th. Back in Baltimore on September 1, he reached New York again on the 13th. Such a double attraction would, however, have dimmed the zeal of Dorcas Van Dyke's wedding.

Following their nuptials, Kensey and Ann Johns settled down to a long and happy wedded life in New Castle. Children were born, among them Fidelis, who became the wife of Governor Thomas Stockton; Kensey, Jr., John, and Van Dyke, Kensey, Jr., succeeded his father as Chancellor of Delaware, and John Johns became a bishop of the Episcopal Church in Virginia, and president of William and Mary College.

Bishop's Comments One glimpse of Ann Van Dyke

he was met by a large delegation from Delaware, among them Colonel Allan McLane, then over 80 years old, who served with the famous Frenchman, passing through Brandewine Village, now part of Wilmington, he paid his respects to old friends, including the descendants of John Tatnall, merchant miller and friend both of Washington and Lafayette.

In Wilmington, after crossing the bridge, he found Market street bedecked with arches, flags, and transparencies of all sorts, and among the decorated buildings was the old tavern, the Sign of the Ship, a building still standing today, which, in honor of the occasion, had its name changed to the Lafayette by its admiring proprietor, General James Wolfe, whose first name was actually General.

General Wolfe served the banquet that day in "the long room" of the old town hall between three and four o'clock. One hundred persons sat down to the feast, including Senator Van Dyke and Louis McLane. Lafayette once said that in his own judgment Senator Van Dyke was one of the first statesmen of America.

Off To New Castle Numerous toasts were drunk, but at five o'clock the guest of honor arose from the table and left for New Castle, where Dorcas Van Dyke was to wed Charles Irene duPont, the oldest son of Victor Marie duPont de Nemours, the latter the brother of Eleutherus Irene duPont de Nemours, founder of the famous Brandywine Powder Works.

Voys were taken under the handsome arch in the hall of the Kensey Johns Van Dyke house, and Lafayette, described at the time as "a large stout man, slightly lame, with heavy and strongly marked features, surmounted by a thick growth of curly reddish hair," gave the blushing bride away. He had then just passed his 67th birthday. Victor duPont married Alice Haunsfield, and their daughter, Alice, married Thomas Coleman duPont, of Kentucky. Alice Haunsfield duPont, daughter of T. Coleman and Alice duPont, married Clayton Douglass Buck, former Governor of Delaware, and until recently, U. S. Senator. A daughter is named Dorcas Van Dyke duPont.

Dorcas duPont died in 1838 at the age of 32. Her aunt, Ann Johns, thus survived her by one year. Charles I. duPont remarried, his second wife being Anne Ritzelby, daughter of Henry Moore and Sarah Baring Ritzelby, of Dover. Charles duPont died in 1850.

(Next Sunday, The Star will tell the story of "People's Constitution Rejected in Poll," how "vest pocket" ballots in the election of 1850 called for a constitutional convention, and how the General Assembly, heeding the request, ordered a special election in 1851 at which the majority voted for such a convention; how delegates were elected in November, 1852 and the Constitution of 1853 was drawn; how this progressive document defeated among other things ratification directly at the polls by the people; and how this first and last Delaware Constitution ever to be submitted to the people was rejected by them in the October election of 1853.)

Plan Delegation To GOP Confab

Delaware's Young Republicans are considering sending three delegates to the organization's national convention in Salt Lake City, June 23.

The names of the delegates and the date that they will leave for the Utah city have not been announced by the state leader, Herbert D. Warburton.

Similar delegations in the past have had one member chosen from

Hundreds of Children Here Plan Vacations in Camp

"Come to Campers one and all! Our campfires beckon you, to heed the call in each living, glowing ember. There are friendships to be made and to remember"

This short piece, appearing on a YWCA brochure boosting Camp Otton, sums up the thoughts of hundreds of young people here in the city planning to go to camp this summer. All the camps, sponsored by organizations in the city, boast of boating, swimming and baseball facilities. There are courses in arts and crafts, dramatics, archery and photography. But beyond the details of each camp's program, the

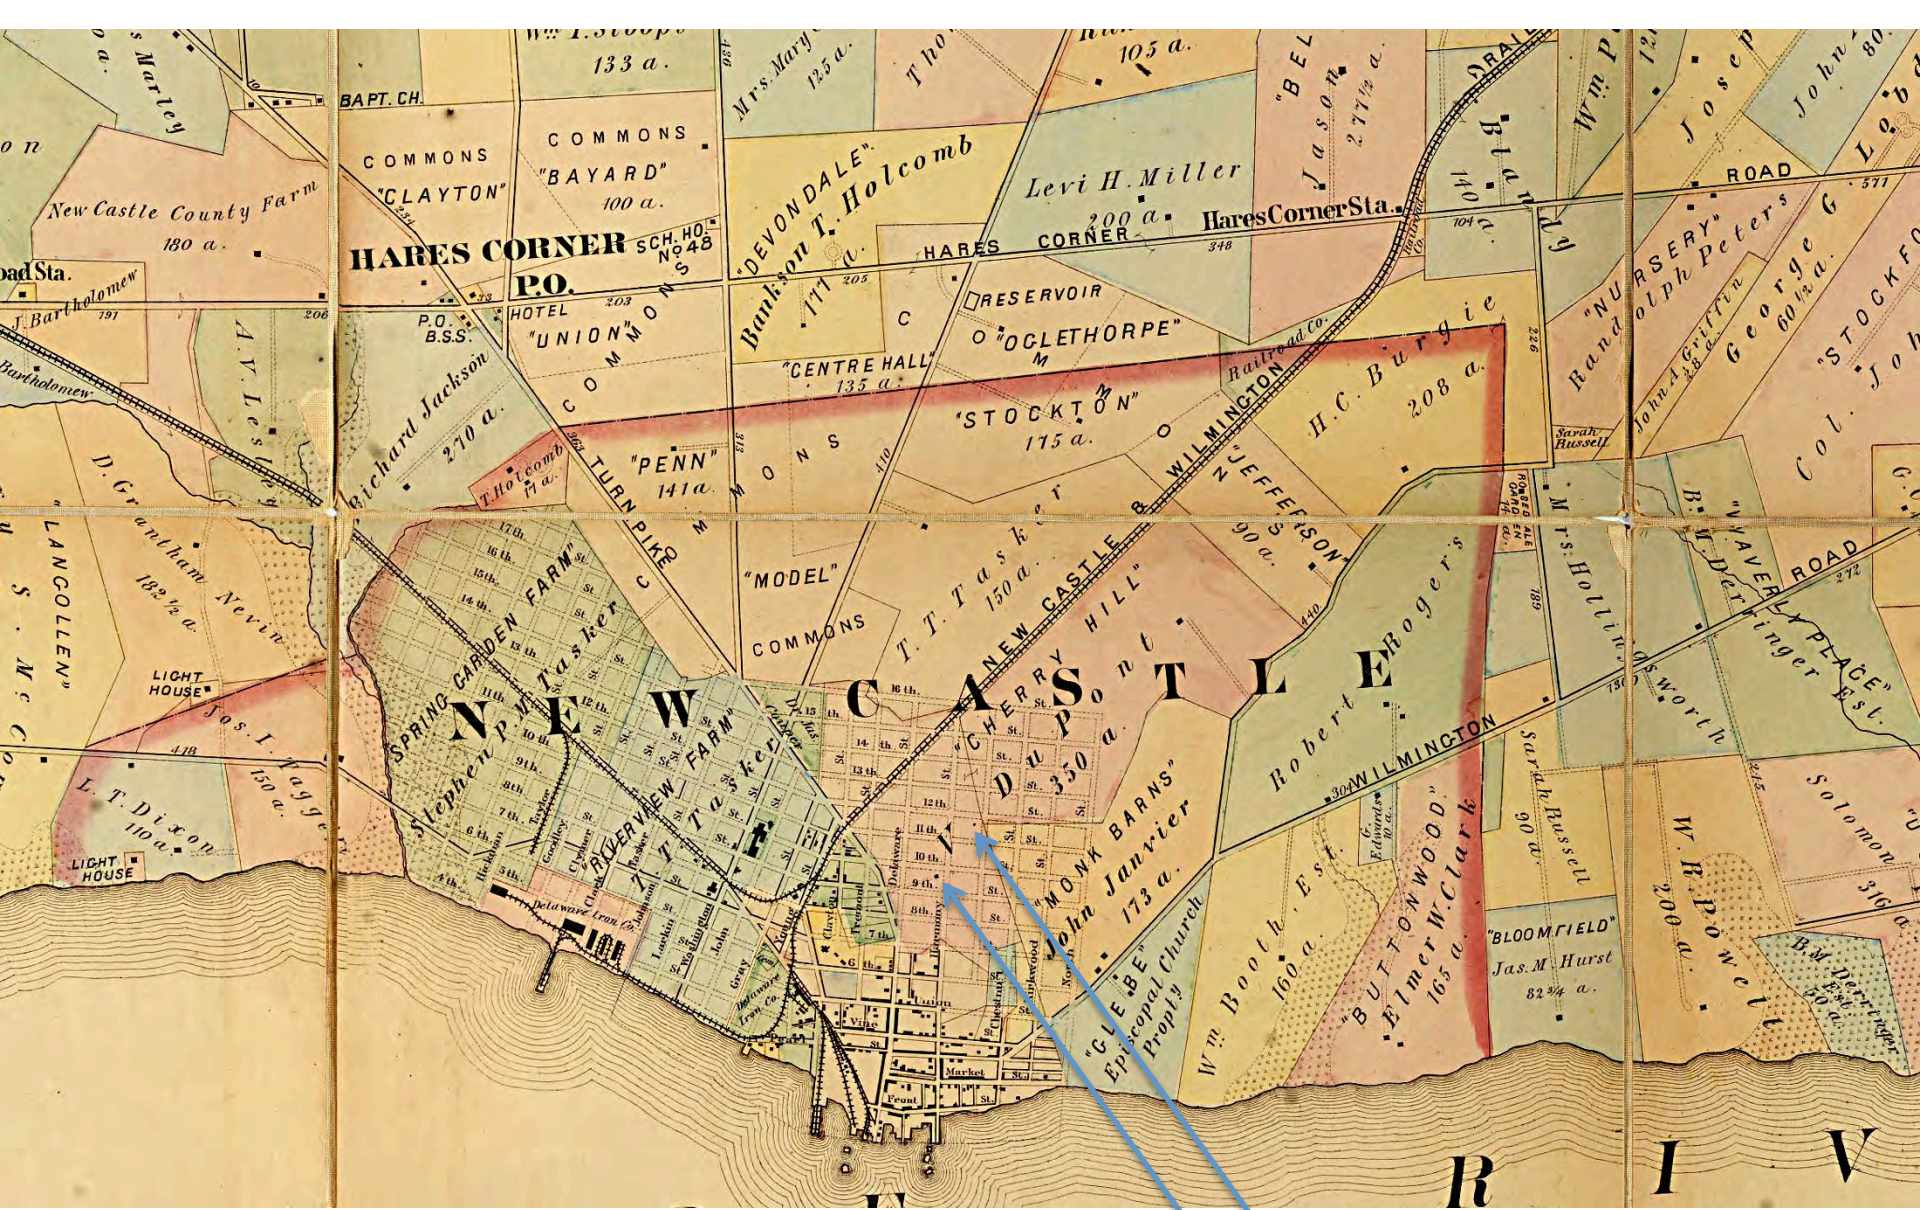

Senior Scouts preparing for a week-long camping trip on the Bassett River. Left to right are ISABELLE LOCKWOOD, NATALIE FARRS, BARBARA BLACK, PEGGY YARNALL.

Nurse Educator On Europe Tour

Miss Jane K. Smith, director of nursing at the Wilmington General Hospital, left last Tuesday from Bradley Field, Conn., flying to Europe, where she will attend the Congress of International Council

Day Camps

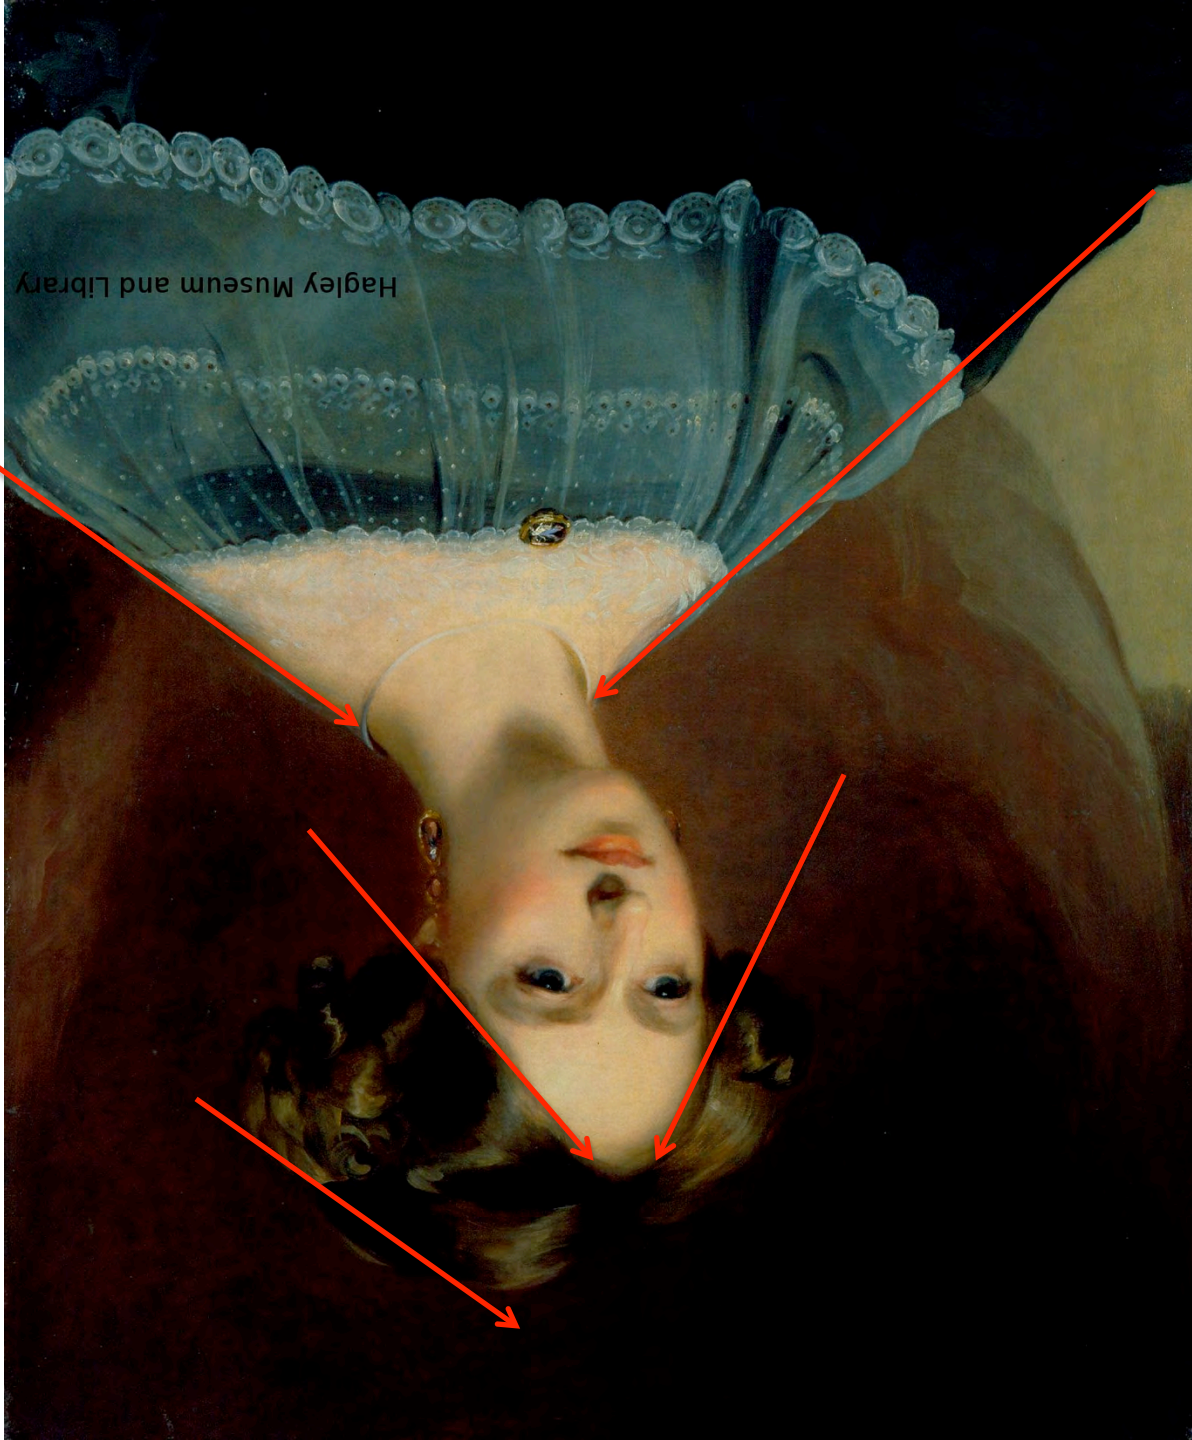

For children who can't get away day camps are being sponsored so that a child's stay in the city will be more enjoyable. A board of education will operate nine day camp centers, all open to public schools. A listing of the follows: Williams, Lore, Har, George Gray, Palmer, Howard, Herbert, No. 21 School, and the school building on Second and Justison street. The season will get started July 5 and will continue four or five weeks. The Girl Scouts, the Wal-

Hopkins Farm Line Map, 1878

V DuPont farm

(Hermitage)

Portraits as Art

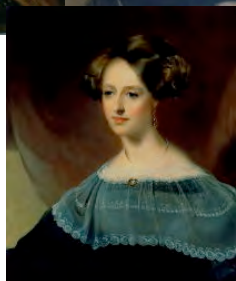

Barnes: (light, line, space, color)

He painted >2,600 paintings
Criticized as not penetrating
(wikipedia)

Class 5: People to 1850 --About Portraits. Age before beauty, [rank, wealth, family size, # portraits in NC, art vs representation....]

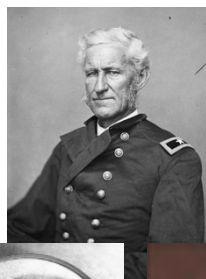

Peter Stuyvesant
Ann Clay BoothOP

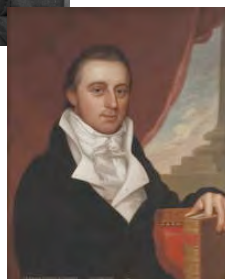

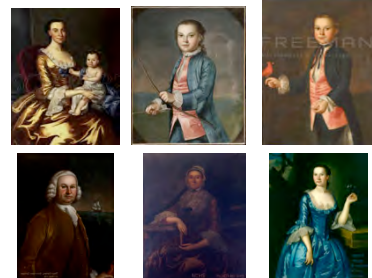

Dorcas Montgomery Van Dyke Dupont
Mary Borden McKean

Ann Curtis Clay
(11/13 living children)

Thomas McKean
Lorenzo Thomas
details.php?wname=ann_curtis_clay

James McCallmont (1798)
Nicholas Van Dyke Jr. (1826)
<http://nc-chap.org/census/riordan/tax1798.php>
<http://nc-chap.org/census/riordan/tax1826.php>

Portrait of Stuyvesant is attributed to known artist Henri Couturier, who lived in New Amsterdam, and HERE in New Amstel

<http://nc-chap.org/chap/couturier/>

Henri Couturier, painter of Leiden, merchant in New Amstel and New Amsterdam.

Couturier was born in Leyden, the birthplace of Rembrandt. On Couturier's marriage certificate his occupation was that of "schilder" (painter). Ten months later he is listed on a document as a "a grosgrain cloth manufacturer (groff greysnreder)". Since his first child was born about this time, he probably needed a steady source of income. That he actually was a painter is shown by his becoming an "original member" of the Leyden St. Luke's guild.

Attr. Couturier

Olof Van Cortlandt

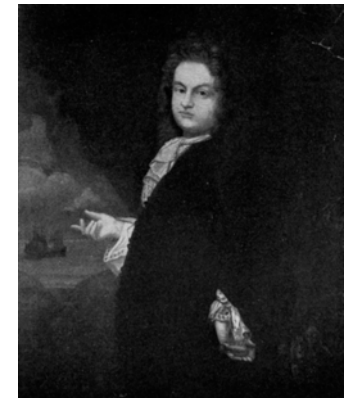

Cornelis Steenwyck

Unknown painter

William Stuyvesant

Frederick Philipse

Evidence for Couturier as painter of A Stuyvesant portrait.

Executive Minutes of the Burgomasters, page 17

Friday, June 12, 1663, at the City Hall present Messrs. Marten Cregier, Olof Stevenzen van Cortlant and the Officer Pieter Tonneman.

The wife of Hendrick Coutrie appearing, she is told, the Burgomasters had learned, that she sold in retail; therefore she is bound to purchase the Burgherright. She answers, it was given to her husband by the Director General : asked, whether she had not given something: for it to the General, she says, her husband has painted the portrait of his Honour and drawn pictures of his sons.

...

Monsieur Hendrick Couterier, living on the South River, to demand and receive in his, the constituent's, name from Sieur Augustinus Herrmans such a quantity of tobacco, as is due him according to vouchers, to...

<http://nc-chap.org/chap/couturier/>

Ann Clay Booth (1759-1846)

Age as pictured: 60-70

Wife, (James Booth Sr.),

Mother of 8

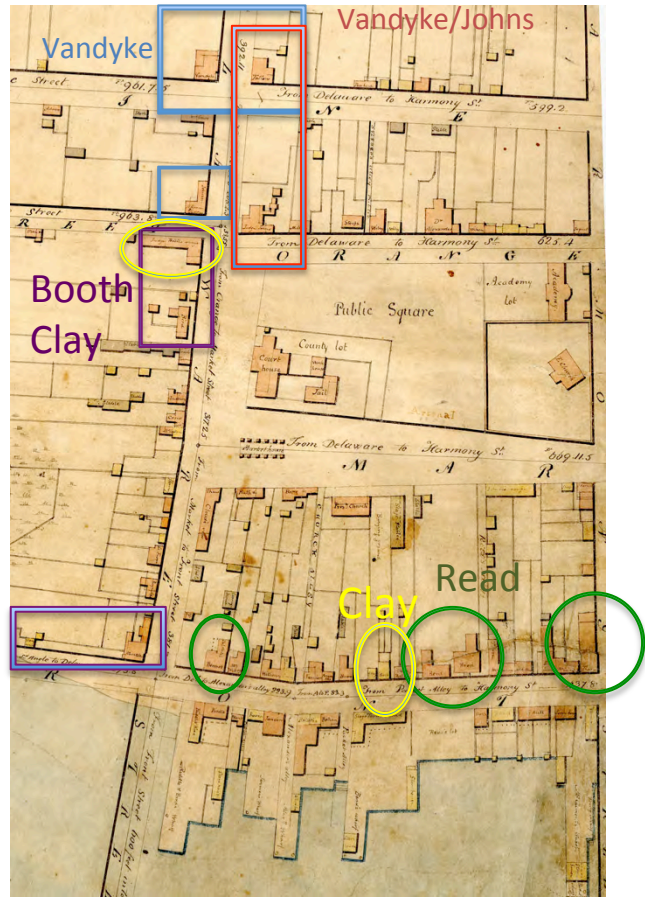

Parents: Slater and Ann (Curtis) Clay.

One of 11 children

Artist: unknown, 1820-1830

Lived at 222 Delaware, born 30 The Strand

Dress styles of
Ann Clay Booth (1759-1846) and daughter-in-law Hannah Booth Jr. (1797-1857)

222 Delaware ("David Finney inn")

212 Delaware ("Booth House")

Sampler worked in 1766 at age 7
by Ann Clay

Give me O Lord thine Heavenly Grace
Nor let my Soul complin
That the young Morning of my Day
Has all been spent in vain

This Day be Bread and Peace my Lo[t]
All else beneath the Sun
Thou know'st if best bestow'd or not
And let thy Will be done

Ann Clay Her First Sampler 1766

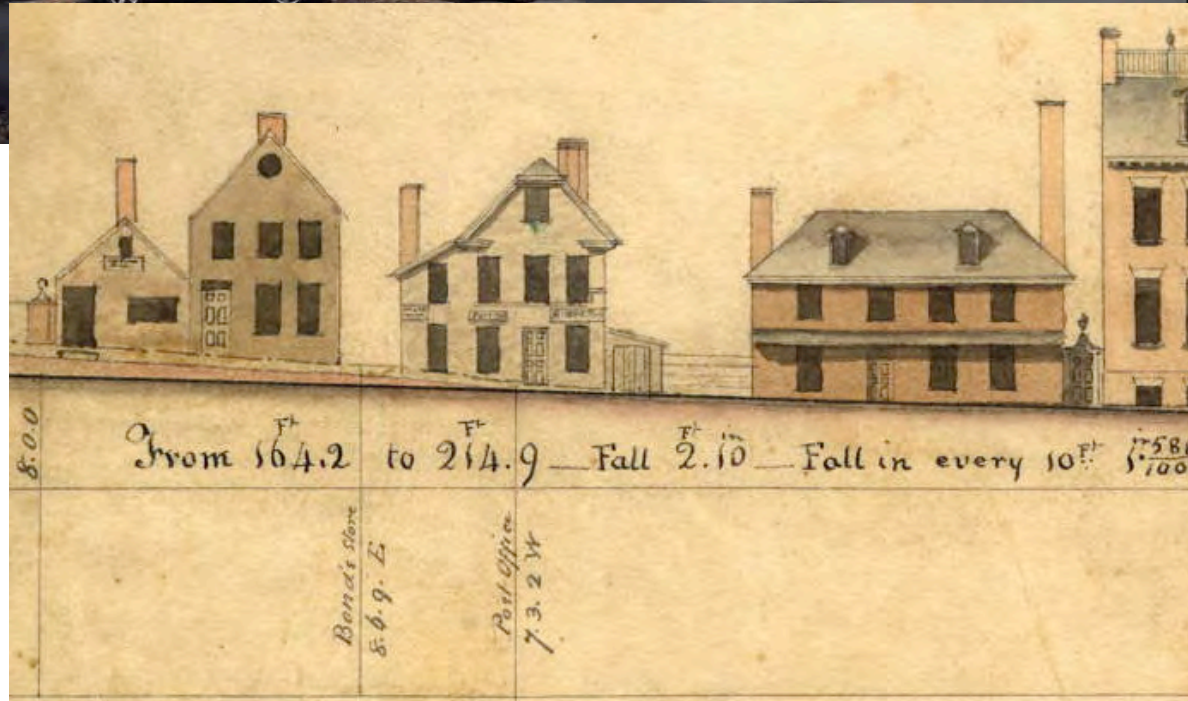

The Strand, 2014, 1803

~#24 (Thom. McKean)

#30

Post Office

G. Read Sr. G. Read Jr.

30 The Strand (now)

Built by merchant James McCullough to replace his house burnt in the fire of 1824.

He also built the store and row of houses across the street at 25-31 The Strand.

Former residents:
Judge Bill Quillen
William Guthrie Esq.
Julia Jefferson

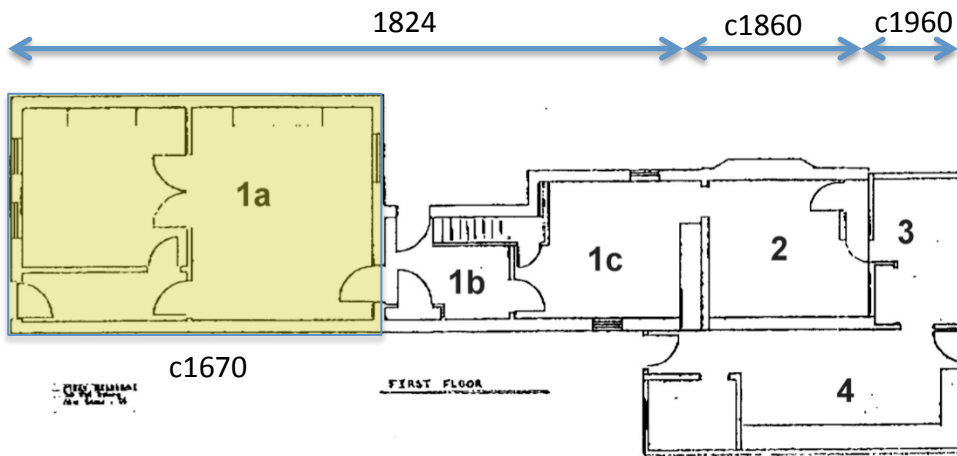

(before the fire)
Slator and Ann Curtis Clay,
Ann Clay Booth,

30 The Strand before the fire of 1824 was half the current size, but home to a family of up to 13 people and at least part of the first floor was a tavern.

We don't know anything about room arrangement, location of the kitchen ...

Ann Curtis Clay (1724-1789)

Mother of 13 including Ann Clay Booth, widow, ran tavern

Lived at 30 The Strand

Married Slator (Slater) Clay 1740 (d 1767)

Philadelphia Gazette Feb. 4, 1746

SLATER CLAY hereby gives Notice, that he has opened a Publick House in Newcastle, the House Mr. Curtis formerly lived in; where all Gentlemen, and others, may depend on good Entertainment both for Man and Horse. ⊕

Slater Clay's family. All painted by John Hesselius c1759.

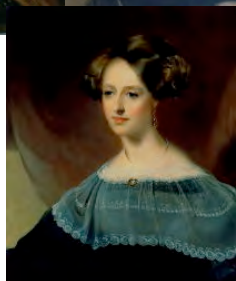

From Reminiscences by Elizabeth Booth, 1884, daughter of Hanna Booth Jr.

P 16, From what I can learn respecting my grandmother Clay [Ann Curtis Clay], she must have been a woman of strong intellect and agreeable conversation. She possessed a business talent, enabling her to manage her property well and support her family during the revolutionary war, but was destitute of that extreme sensibility and tenderness of feeling that characterized my mother. It might have been from the circumstances in which she was placed. She was at that time a widow, her husband, Sator Clay, having died in 1767. As no goods were imported for some time previous to the war, articles of clothing were expensive and often difficult to obtain, and frequently people cut up what they could spare in the household to make garments...I have often regretted that my grandmother's house was destroyed in the fire of 1824. I would like to view again the room my mother once showed me where my grandmother used to sit and read and write and adjust her accounts; and the large attic room, called Mount Racket, where the children were allowed to play and make as much noise as they pleased.

Class 5: People to 1850 --About Portraits. Age before beauty, [rank, wealth, family size, # portraits in NC, art vs representation....]

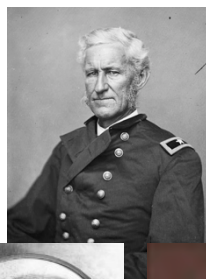

Peter Stuyvesant
Ann Clay BoothOP

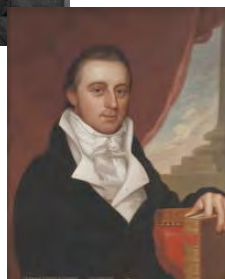

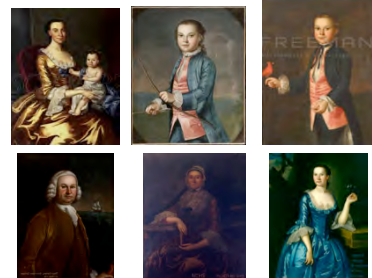

Dorcas Montgomery Van Dyke Dupont
Mary Borden McKean

Ann Curtis Clay
(11/13 living children)

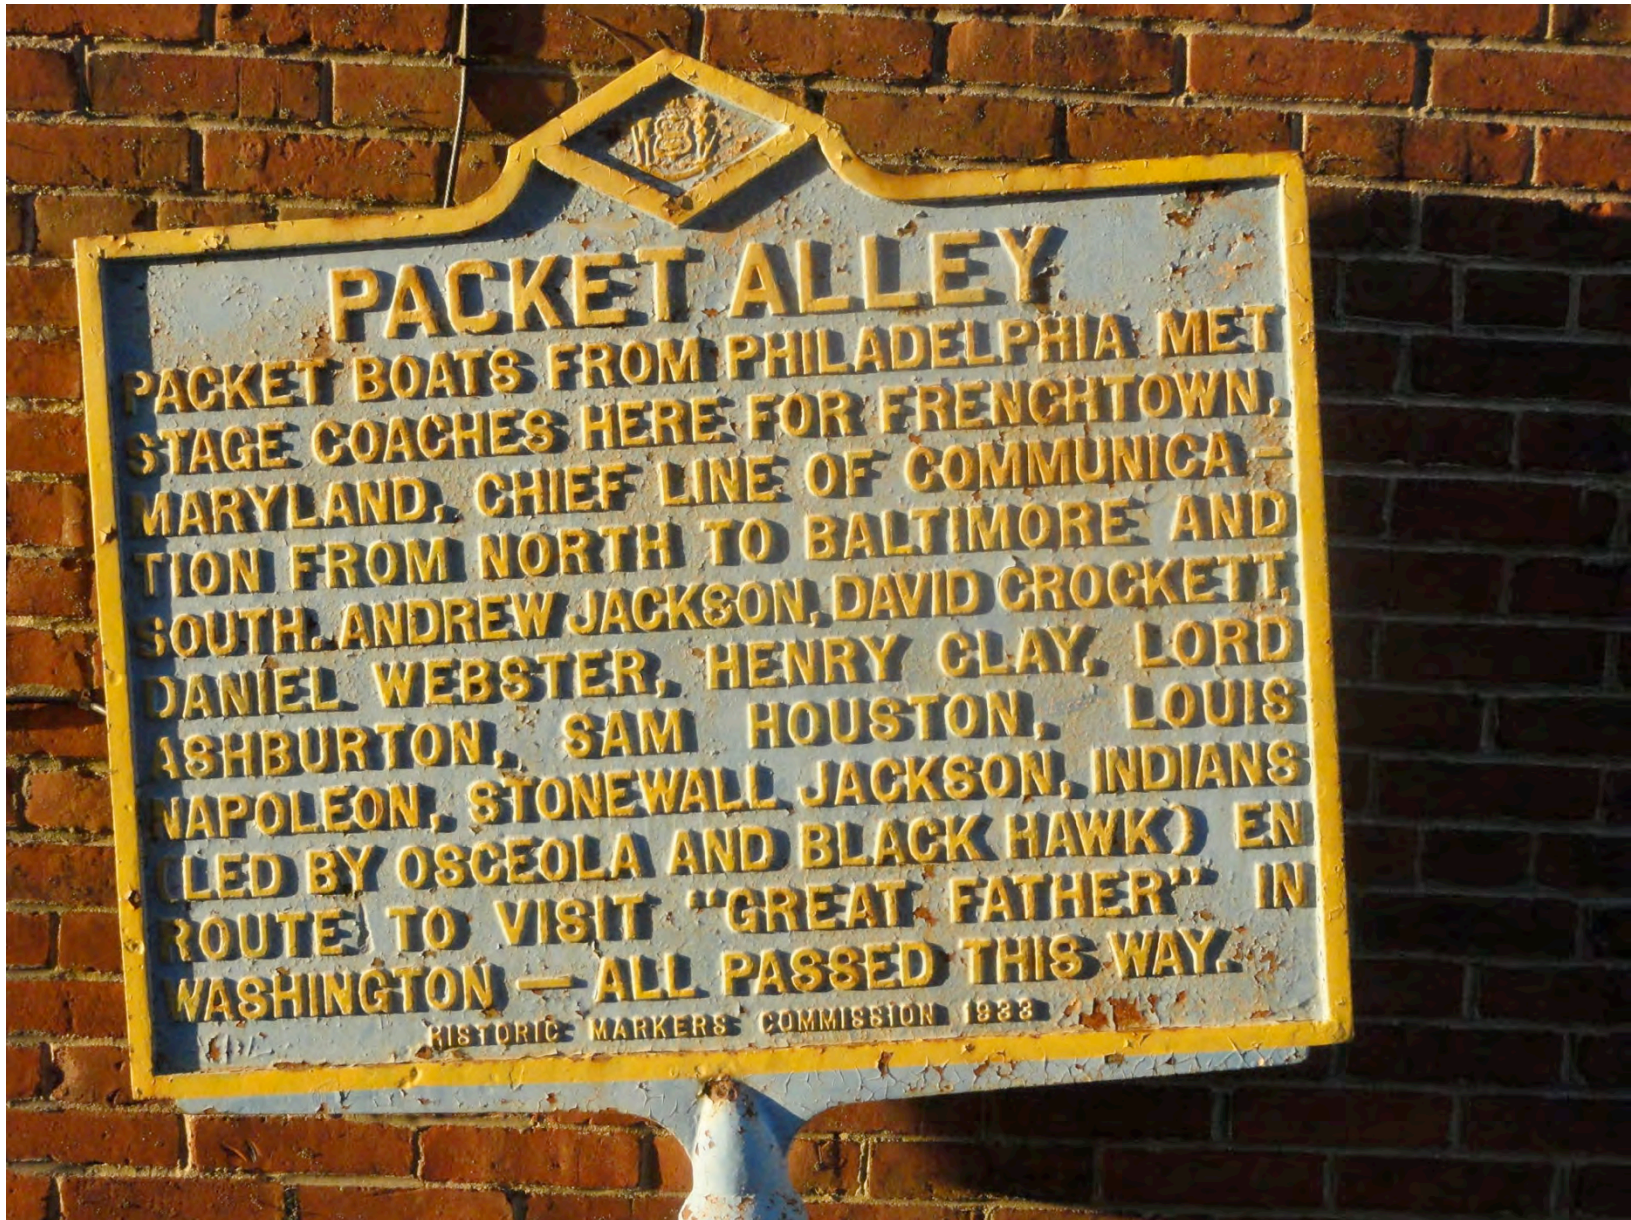

Thomas McKean
Lorenzo Thomas
details.php?wname=ann_curtis_clay

James McCallmont (1798)
Nicholas Van Dyke Jr. (1826)
<http://nc-chap.org/census/riordan/tax1798.php>
<http://nc-chap.org/census/riordan/tax1826.php>

Presidents (Washington, Jackson) and Vice presidents (Biden) have VISITED New Castle

Thomas McKean (1734-1817)

Mary Borden McKean
(1744 -March 12, 1773)

Mary's grave at main entrance to Immanuel Church

Brig. Gen. Lorenzo Thomas, U. S. Army

Adjutant General, 1861, Secretary of War “ad interim”, 1868

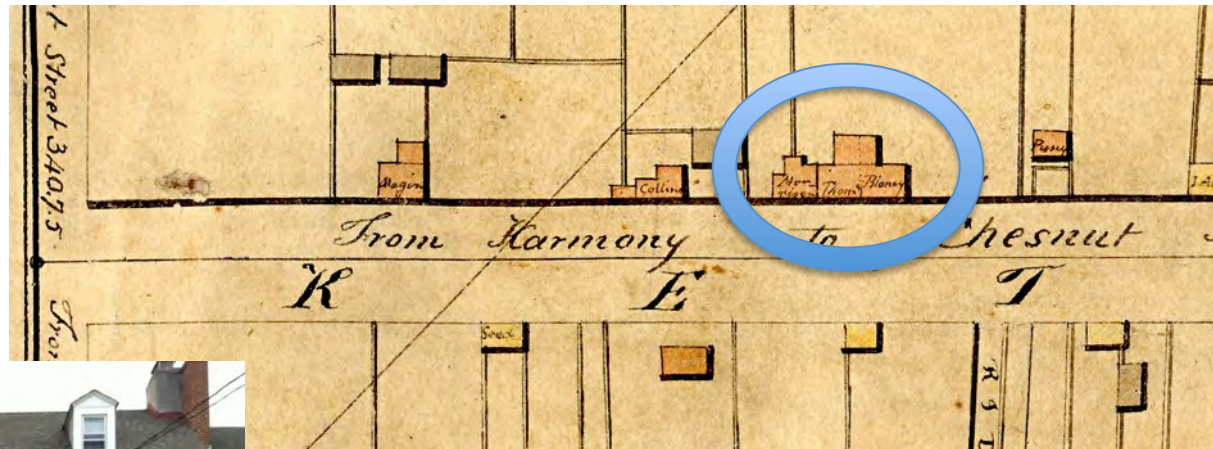

1804 Born in New Castle to Evan Thomas, Esq.
May have lived on E2nd
Attended New Castle Academy
Appointed to West Point by Sen. N. Van Dyke Jr., 1823 Graduated
1832 Married Elizabeth Colesberry (1806-1879) in
New Castle, 9 children
1835 Served in 2nd Seminole war
1853 Chief of staff to commander of U.S. Army
1861 Adjutant General
1863 “Banished” by Sec. War Edward Stanton
Recruited and created black troops in MS.
He is “only fit for presiding over a crypt of Egyptian mummies like himself,””
1868 After Lincoln’s death, successor Andrew
Johnson fired Stanton and replaced him with U. S. Grant, then Thomas.
(Read about Andrew Johnson impeachment)!

Where did Gen. Thomas grow up in New Castle?

He was born in 1804 in New Castle to Evan Thomas, Esq. (1763-1836) who emigrated from Wales. They were apparently unrelated to Charles Thomas (of the current Episcopal parish house at The Strand & Harmony). He is shown in the census for NC from 1800-1830.

The Latrobe map of 1804-5 shows a brick “Thomas” house as the left half of a duplex a few feet from modern Plum Alley. This may be 136 E 2nd (Terry Gormley) but it needs to be checked out with title chains.

134-138 E 2nd

The N.H.R. inventory describes 134-138 E 2nd as “late 1700’s” . Note Georgian/Federal features: fan light or square transom, gabled roof, flemish bond, mostly symmetrical except for one door/ alley.

Wealthiest people in New Castle

1798			1815			1826
Last Name	First Name	Assessment	Last Name	First Name	Assessment	Last Name	First Name	Assessment
Baker (est)	Jacob	7736	Hand	Geo	4668	Vandyke Jr	Nichls	2890
Stockton (est)	John	2814	Belvill	Jacob	4045	Booth	Jam	2072
McCallmont	Jam	2790	Vandyke	Nichls	3756	Dickinson	Polly? Ann	1950
Alexander	Archibald	2727	McCallmont	Jam	3403	Read II	Geo	1866
Belvill	Jacob	2466	Gardner	Jn	2997	Guthrie	Wm	1589
Riddle	Jas	2400	Booth	Jam	2820	Johns	Kensey	1536
Johns	Kinsey	2303	Mundal	Jn	2354
Booth	James	2280	Read II	Geo	2269
Armstrong	Wm	2257	Barr	Robt	2219
Keely (est)	Matthias	2223	Johns	Kensey	2006
Megans	Thos	2166	Riddle	James	1896
Darraugh	Jn	2129	Benett	Calib P.	1869
Read sr I	Geo	2105
Read jr II	Geo	2071

James McCallmont (1755-1824)

Owned the ferry monopoly
Physician, cofounder Med. Soc. De
Navy surgeon, Spanish POW

Lived at 56 The Strand

Painted by Thomas Sully (lost), and “physiognotrace” by Saint-Memin

http://nc-chap.org/portraits/details.php?wname=james_mccallmont

Nicholas Van Dyke Jr. (1770-1826)

U. S. Representative (1807-1811)

U. S. Senate (1817-1826)

Trustee NCC

Does wealth bring happiness? Not for Nicks Van Dyke.

Born, grew up,
Amstel House

Built this,
400 Delaware
N VD Jr house

Built this,
300 Delaware
"Kensy Johns VD"

Built east half
The Hermitage

Houses and Farms FOR SALE.

THE undersigned, contemplating a removal from the state of Delaware, offers for sale three brick Dwelling Houses, with valuable lots of ground, in the town of New-Castle, all fronting on Delaware street.

No. 1.
The subscriber's present residence.

No. 2.
Now occupied by William Waugh as a public house.

No. 3.
Now occupied by Jas. Rogers, Esq.

Also, the following Farms:

No. 1.
Called the "Hermitage" near New-Castle.

No. 2.
Now occupied by Henry Morton, about one mile from New-Castle.

No. 3.
"Belle Vue" Farm, near Hamburg, now occupied by Andrew Barnaby.

No. 4.
"Laurel Hill," in Red Lion hundred, now occupied by I. S. Van Dyke.

No. 5.
A small tract ofurable and wood land, adjoining Laurel Hill, and to be sold with the farm.

Ns. Van Dyke,
New-Castle, Del.

Feb. 1—tf

AD APPEARING IN
DELAWARE GAZETTE
FEBRUARY 1, 1816
(FROM KAPLAN TERM PAPER)

Senator Van Dyke disliked DC and sighed "for the shade of the Hermitage and the sweet .. course of domestic life" (1809).

To be Rented.

A LARGE two story Brick House in the town of New-Castle, with a garden and grass lot, carriage house and stables.

OR

The Hermitage Farm, near New-Castle, where the subscriber now resides. Possession may be had of either property immediately, and with the farm may be had a valuable stock of Milch Cows, Oxen and Plough Horses, with Carts and farming implements.

Nicks Van Dyke.
New-Castle, Del August 11 1m

AD APPEARING IN
DELAWARE GAZETTE
AUGUST 18, 1820
(FROM KAPLAN TERM PAPER)

He grew restless and put ads in the paper first to sell (1816), then rent his houses (1820). Built 300 Delaware in 1820, gave it to his son who died not long after. Nicks VD died in 1826 (at the age of 56)

http://nc-chap.org/resources/schroeder_hermitage.pdf - page=14

Ann Van Dyke Johns (1768-1839)

Lived at 2 E. 4th Street, 2 E 3rd Street

Married Kensey Johns Sr. (1784)

Children:

Fidelia (1785-1871)

Ann (1787-1874)

Susannah Stewart (1789-1862)

Kensey Jr (1791-1857)

John Johns (1796-1876) estranged?

Van Dyke (1798-1801) estranged?

Henrietta (c1800- 1837, m c1820, 1823) disowned*

Henry Van Dyke (1803 -1859)

Kensey and Ann Van Dyke Johns in Amstel House parlor.
They lived in this house while their house on the Green was being built.
On the table, in addition to the tea service is a snippet of her non-white wedding gown.

The image shows two ornate brass candlesticks positioned on a dark, textured stone floor. The candlesticks are highly decorative, featuring multiple tiers and a bulbous base. The floor is composed of large, irregular stone tiles. In the center of the floor, there is an inscription in raised letters. A thin, curved metal rod or wire is visible in the foreground, partially obscuring the bottom of the inscription.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

APRIL 30 1784

John Johns (1796-1876)

Estranged son of Kensey and Ann Johns?

Bishop of Virginia,
President W&M,
President Va. Theol. Seminary

John Johns was a respected and loved minister who served in Maryland and Virginia. Although he was born (July 10, 1796) and grew up in New Castle, his entire adult life was spent outside the state.

Bishop John apparently did not let others know of his distinguished and wealthy father.

http://nc-chap.org/portraits/details.php?wname=john_johns

What son of a prominent resident was an opium dealer and diplomat?

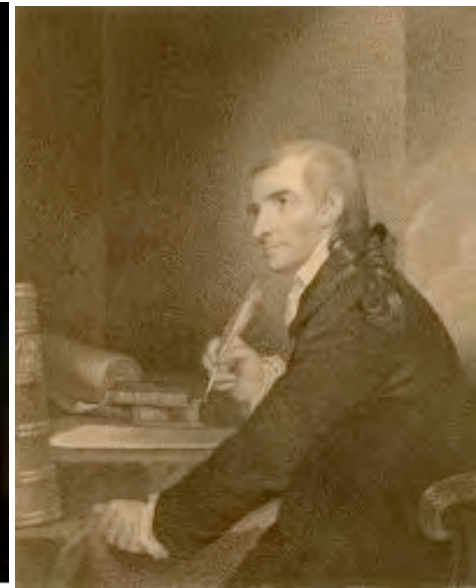

William Reed (1767-1846)

Consul General, Kingdom of Naples
Opium merchant with China

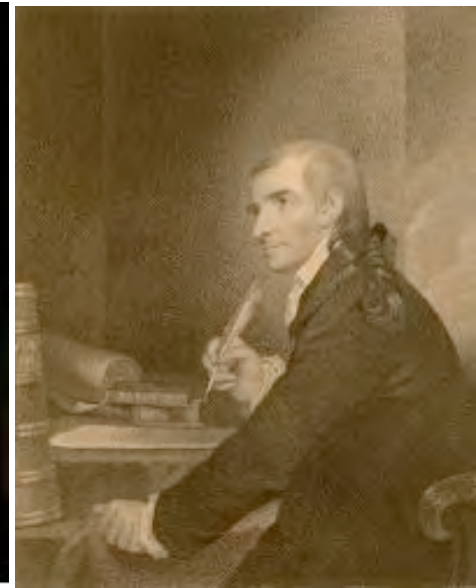

http://nc-chap.org/portraits/details.php?wname=william_read

What FOUR people who lived or worked in New Castle signed the Declaration of Independence?

What FOUR people who lived or worked in New Castle signed the Declaration of Independence?

George Read Sr., Thomas McKean, (DE), George Ross, (PA), Francis Hopkinson (NJ),

Some Faces in the New Castle Area --- by painter

H. Couturier? <1663
 G. Hesselius c1712
 J. Hesselius c1759

Peter Stuyvesant Tobias Bjork Anna Dorothea Finney Ann Curtis Clay Slator Clay

Charles Willson Peale
 1787, 1804
 Rembrandt Peale c1815
 Sarah Miriam Peale?

Thomas, Thomas Jr. McKean Benjamin Latrobe Benjamin Latrobe John Johns

Charles St. Memin
 Samuel Sartain <1811
 Gilbert Stuart 1816
 Thomas Sully 1832

James McCallmont George Read II Thomas Macdonough Dorcas Van Dyke Dupont

Next Week

Oct 11 - Class 6: People to 1950

Video interviews with people who remember:

trollies, gas lights, ice skating to NJ, dances in the Opera House, the whipping post, hired help living in a 10' x 12' cabin, working (and dieing) in local steel mills, immigrating from Italy in the 20's then becoming American, shad fishing and life on the waterfront and the Laird yacht basin

Erik Björk, pastor of Cranehook & Old Swedes Church

By Gustaf Hesselius

Erik Björk was one of the three Church of Sweden priests sent to America in 1697 to revive the churches and serve the remaining Swedes on the Delaware.

While initially pastor at Crane Hook, he supervised construction of Holy Trinity (Old Swedes') Church in Wilmington and was pastor there from 1697 until 1713.

Portraits of him and his wife Christina Stalcop were painted by Gustaf Hesselius around 1712.

Hesselius lived in 'Wilmington' from 1711-1717, then PHL and MD where he painted 'first American painting to depict a 'scene' (vs portraits)

Portraits of the Van Dyke Family Of New Castle

Nicholas Van Dyke

John Crawley, 1813
John Crawley, 1813
Jefferson Davis(d)
Chalfant >1900?

Mary Van Leuvenigh Van Dyke

Nicholas Van Dyke, Jr.

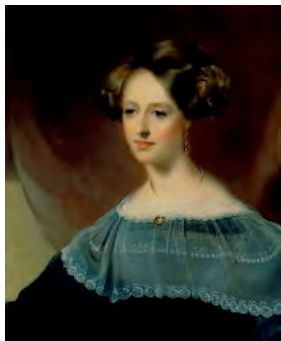

Ann Van Dyke Johns Kensey Johns, Sr.

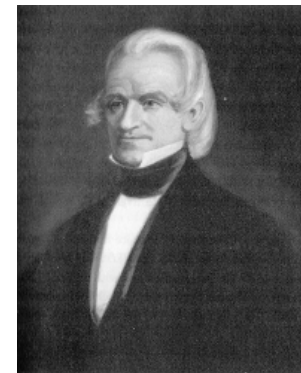

Jacob Eicholtz
Jacob Eicholtz, 1825

Thomas Sully, 1832

Dorcas Montgomery Van Dyke Dupont

Sara Miriam Peale?

Kensey Johns, Jr.

John Johns